Mr. Cobb's Reply to the "Era."

SHELBY, N. C., April 14th, 1872. Editors of Daily News:

A friend has sent me an editorial, clipped from your paper, headed "The Era and Rev. Mr. Cobb," in which you generously and successfully defend me from the unjust ungenerous and uncalled for attack of that paper upon myself for reporting the speech of Hon. Z. B. Vance, at Statesville, for the Daily Dispatch. It has ever been the habit of bardened sinners to seek for solace in heralding the sins of others. When exhorted to confessions and contrition, they usually excuse themselves from the duty and bolster themselves up in their wickedness by finding, or making, fault with others who profess holiness; as if they could be made pure by their proving others impure, or as if they

RALEIGH, Dec. 9, 1800. The Medical Society of North Carolina met in this city on Monday last, and closed their meeting on Wednesday.

Drs. Osborn, Mitchell, Sitley, Armstead and French were admitted members. An essay on the causes, symptoms and treatment of gout and rheumatism, was presented by Dr. J. Webb, of Hillsboro'. which received the warmest commendations of the Society. Dr. Webb appeared also as a writer on dysentery, (the subject given at last annual meeting for competition.) with conspicuous merit. The thanks of the Society were voted him for the zeal and talent displayed in advancement of the objects of the institution-

Mr. Charles Smith presented himself as a candidate for admission, was examined by the Censors in the presence of the Society, and admitted.

It was resolved that the medical gentle men in each district of the State be invited to form themselves into associations, to meet at such time and place in said dis tricts as they may deem proper, and confer The following premiums were offered for the culture of the following medicinal
